1. The main function of KNOJ is still frontier control, but at the time of the reorganization of the Yugoslav Armed Forces in July 1948 three Alpine (or mountain) regiments were incorporated into the KNOJ units. These regiments had previously been stationed at Skofia Loka, Delnice and Debar. The last regiment had been incomplete and was used as a penal unit where officers received disciplinary treatment.
 2. Four KNOJ divisions are known with headquarters at Zagreb, Belgrade, Sarajevo, and Skoplje. Each division is organized into three regiments which are composed of six battalions with three companies each. A company is made up of three platoons having three sections of ten men.
 3. Zagreb is the headquarters of 2 KNOJ Division and 1 Regiment of this division. Another regiment of 2 KNOJ Division is stationed at Ljubljana. One of the battalions of 1 Regiment at Zagreb has its headquarters at Delnice. Its Battalion commander is a Major Popovic who was formerly second in command of 2 Alpine Regiment.
 4. The Yugoslav frontier is organized into districts (Oblasts) to which frontier guard regiments (Granicarski pukovi) or lesser units are assigned.
 5. All KNOJ personnel must previously have completed their military service and have passed their military qualification tests.
 6. KNOJ officers are members of the Communist Party.
